Short description

The Higher Apprenticeship in Business Management is designed to develop high-performing Professional Managers that behave ethically and demonstrate their commitment to continual learning and development. Through this framework participants will develop the skills and knowledge required to take responsibility for people, projects, operations and/or services to deliver long term organisational success. This will include the capability to manage complexity and deliver impact at a strategic and/or operational level with management and leadership responsibility for setting and delivering organisational objectives through a wide range of functions.

Participants will develop management and leadership skills, self-awareness and behaviours encompassing:

- strategic decision making
- change management

- project management
- financial management
- risk management
- building and leading teams
- fostering inclusive and ethical cultures
- stakeholder relationships development.

This apprenticeship is suitable for a variety of roles in Professional management in the private, public or third sector and all sizes of organisation. Specific job roles may include: Manager; Business Manager; Senior Manager; Head of Department; Operations Manager; or anyone with significant management responsibilities.

Roles in this framework are likely to fit into Standard Occupational Code (SOC): 24

Purpose of this framework

Summary of the purpose of the framework

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) Labour Market Statistics show that, between 2016 & 2017 there was an increase of around 30,000 professionals at Management or Director level in the UK. Developing high-performing Management professionals who understand the needs of their customers, suppliers and organisation is critical to enabling organisations to grow in a sustainable way.

In the current economic climate, Managers at this level are being required to perform to a high standard to ensure that resources are managed as efficiently and that policies are adhered to. It is therefore important that current and future Management professionals are equipped with the right skills and knowledge to remain competitive in the national and international market place.

Typically, new entrants to the profession study Management qualifications. Whilst this gives them a good grounding in Business Management, feedback from employers has highlighted that more needs to be done to help students apply what they have learnt within their own organisation. This better prepares them to respond quickly to changing priorities and become effective managers. More support is particularly needed for those working in global organisations where development programmes are designed to meet specific priorities.

Business Management Apprenticeship

This apprenticeship framework has been developed to address the issues highlighted above, and support learners in becoming effective managers. The framework offers employers an innovative, cost-effective way of developing Management capability within their organisations. By combining on and off-the-job learning, those undertaking a Business Management apprenticeship will develop insights into their organisation's business challenges and capability needs, and therefore be more effective in applying their skills and knowledge to support their organisation's goals.

The Higher Apprenticeship in Business Management is aimed at those progressing into roles such as Senior Manager; Head of Department; Operations Manager or a role with significant Management responsibility. It will help employers to attract bright individuals who may not want to go directly to university but want to develop a career in a business-related profession. The apprenticeship could also support the development of higher-level skills among existing Management staff, to add greater value and support the needs of their organisation.

The Higher Apprenticeship in Business Management offers a new route to professional recognition as Chartered Managers and Members of the Chartered Management Institute (CMgr MCMI) and/or as a member of the Institute for Leadership & Management or other relevant professional body thus further supporting the Government's agenda of opening up access to the professions.

All Welsh apprenticeship certificates must be claimed via the ACW (Apprenticeship Certification Wales) online system. This online system, which went live in July 2013, is operated by Instructus Skills on behalf of the Federation For Industry Sector Skills and Standards (FISSS).

In order to claim a Welsh apprenticeship certificate you must register on ACW:

https://acwcerts.co.uk/register_centre

Aims and objectives of this framework (Wales)

This framework has been developed to provide employers of all sizes and across all sectors in Wales with a high-quality, nationally-recognised programme which will attract new talent at Business Management level and up-skill the existing workforce to make businesses more productive, efficient and profitable.

The objectives of this framework are to provide Business Managers with the skills and knowledge in:

- Organisational Performance
- Leadership Skills
- Operational Strategy
- Project Management
- Sales and Marketing
- Self Management.

Entry conditions for this framework

Individual employers will set the selection criteria for their Apprenticeships.

Most candidates will have A levels (or equivalent) plus Essential Skills (or equivalent) in Communication, Application of Number and Digital Skills at Level 2.

Most candidates will have existing relevant Level 3 or 4 qualifications or Apprenticeship Certificates in subjects such as Management; Finance; Project Management; other sector specific education; OR

Other demonstrable relevant or prior experience may be considered as an alternative to formal qualifications.

The Business Management apprenticeship framework is open to those who have no prior Management experience as well as to those who are currently working as Managers.

A Business Management apprentice will need good levels of numeracy and literacy, as well as a strong interest in what makes businesses successful, and how to get the best out of people. Good analytical skills and the ability to work with colleagues to earn their trust and respect are also important.

Applicants are likely to exhibit the following key behaviours:

- curiosity
- decisive thinker
- skilled influencer
- driven to deliver
- collaborative
- courage to challenge
- role model
- personally credible.

Processes for recruiting apprentices should ensure they assess an applicant's aptitude for working in Higher Level Management as well as their educational achievements.

Initial assessment must be used to ensure apprentices can gain recognition for relevant prior learning and achievement. The process should also identify any additional support or reasonable adjustments that may be required to enable an apprentice to have a fair opportunity to demonstrate their ability.

Processes should be applied to make sure that applicants with prior knowledge, qualifications and experience are not disadvantaged by having to repeat learning. Training providers and awarding bodies will be able to advise on the current rules for accrediting prior learning and recognising prior experience.

(No requirement specified)

The remaining sections apply to all levels and pathways within this framework.

How equality and diversity will be met

According to the Office for National Statistics, depending on the sector the balance between male and female managers at the higher levels is around 60/40.

No current data is available to indicate an imbalance (or otherwise) of employees from minority backgrounds or with disabilities.

Companies are working to address perceptions that Business Management is more or less suitable to either sex and jobs are open to those from a variety of backgrounds. This approach will continue with the promotion of the higher apprenticeship.

Business Management is increasingly becoming a graduate career. The higher apprenticeship will open up a new route into the profession for talented individuals who do not want to go to university but want to pursue a professional career.

Entry conditions to this framework do not discriminate against any individuals, with the framework being open and accessible to all potential apprentices. Mentoring is also promoted within the apprenticeship to provide additional support and increase the chances of apprentices staying. Training providers and employers must also comply with the Equality Act 2010 to ensure that applicants are not discriminated against in terms of entry to and promotion within, the profession, using the protected characteristics of:

- age
- disability
- gender reassignment
- marriage and civil partnership
- pregnancy and maternity/paternity
- race
- religion or belief
- gender

Instructus Skills monitors take-up and achievement of all apprenticeships and will take steps to address any barriers to take-up and achievement.

On and off the job training (Wales)

Summary of on- and off-the-job training

Training time for the Higher Apprenticeship in Business Management is split into on-the-job training hours and off-the job training hours, as described below.

Total minimum training hours are as follows:

- FdSc in Applied Business Management OR FdA Applied Business Management - 2400 hours
- BSc (Hons) in Applied Business Management OR BA (Hons) Applied Business Management - 3600 hours.

The Business Management apprenticeship will ordinarily last a minimum of:

- 24 months for Foundation Degree
- 36 months for Bachelor Degree.

A flexible approach to learning is encouraged for learners who have prior learning or experience.

Regardless of how long the apprenticeship takes, the minimum number of training hours, as shown above must be met.

Training hours can be attached to both the accredited and un-accredited parts of the apprenticeship, and will include, for example, inductions, reviews, training, the qualification, career discussions, Essential Skills Wales and any other activities which help the apprentice gather the required skills and underpinning knowledge within their job role.

It is recommended that a training plan is developed at the outset of the apprenticeship to determine how the training hours requirements will be met.

Off-the-job training

The total off-the-job training for the Level 5 Higher Apprenticeship in Business Management is 2511 hours, made up as:

- 60 hours for Essential Skills Wales (20 hours per skill)
- 2400 hours (minimum) to cover the knowledge content within the FdSc Applied Business Management OR FdA Applied Business Management

- 15 hours for activities including initial assessments, inductions etc.
- 36 hours of off-the-job coaching and mentoring to support the apprentice.

The total off-the-job training for the Level 6 Higher Apprenticeship in Business Management is 3651 hours, made up as:

- BSc (Hons) in Applied Business Management OR BA (Hons) Applied Business Management - 3600 hours
- 15 hours for activities including initial assessments, inductions etc.
- 36 hours of off-the-job coaching and mentoring to support the apprentice.

How this requirement will be met

Training hours delivered under an Apprenticeship Agreement may vary depending on the previous experience and attainment of the apprentice.

The amount of off-the-job training required to complete the apprenticeship under the Apprenticeship Agreement may then be reduced accordingly, provided the total number of off-the-job hours for this framework can be verified for apprenticeship certification.

Previous attainment

Where a learner enters an Apprenticeship Agreement having previously attained parts or all of the relevant qualifications, this prior learning needs to be recognised using either Regulatory Qualification credit transfer for achievements within the Regulatory Qualification; or through recording certificated learning outside of it, for example Principal Learning qualifications.

For apprentices who have already achieved the relevant qualifications, they must have been certificated within five years of applying for the apprenticeship certificate.

Previous experience

Where a learner enters an Apprenticeship Agreement with previous work-related experience, this prior learning needs to be recognised. To count towards apprenticeship certification, previous experience must be recorded using the appropriate Awarding Organisation's CQFW 'Recognition of Prior Learning' (RPL) procedures and the hours recorded may then count towards the off-the-job hours required to complete the apprenticeship.

For apprentices with prior uncertificated learning experience, the off-the-job learning must have been acquired within five years of application for the apprenticeship certificate or have been continuously employed in the relevant job role in the industry for three years duration.

Off-the-job training hours refers to the time taken to develop the technical skills and to develop knowledge of theoretical concepts across a range of contexts. It can be seen as time away from the 'immediate pressures of the job' and may include all or some of the following (non-exclusive) activities:

- individual and group teaching
- coaching
- distance learning
- e-learning
- feedback and assessment
- guided study
- reflective learning
- reflective practice
- learning with peers/networked or collaborative learning mentoring.

Off-the-job training needs to:

- be planned, reviewed and evaluated jointly between the apprentice and: a tutor, or teacher; their workplace supervisor or manager; or their coach or mentor
- allow access as and when required by the apprentice either to a tutor, teacher, supervisor, manager, mentor or coach
- be delivered through one or more of the following methods: individual and group teaching, e-learning, distance learning, coaching, mentoring, observation, feedback and assessment, collaborative/networked learning with peers, guided study, reflective learning, reflective practice and induction
- be characterised by formal or planned taught sessions delivered predominantly by qualified training staff
- be delivered during contracted working hours
- be delivered whilst working under an apprenticeship agreement, or during a qualifying period prior to working under an apprenticeship agreement ending on the date of application for an apprenticeship certificate.

Off-the-job training must be formally recorded, either in a diary, workbook, portfolio, or be verified by attendance records. This evidence needs to be checked and signed by the assessor and employer.

Evidence of off-the-job training hours

The Apprenticeship Certificate Claim Form requires apprentices to acknowledge that they have received the minimum required levels of on the job and off the job training, as set out in the apprenticeship framework document. At this stage no other evidence is required to be uploaded to ACW.

Please see the Instructus Skills website for the relevant documents and for further information.

On-the-job training

The total on-the-job training for the Business Management Apprenticeship will vary due to the hours worked by each company and the time dedicated to the apprenticeship outside the structure of the qualifications but is likely to be around 2000 hours (based on 35 hr week across 45 weeks) across the 3 year program, made up as follows:

- 1964 hours (minimum) to cover the competence content within the qualifications and any company specific requirements
- 36 hours of on-the-job coaching and mentoring to support the apprentice.

How this requirement will be met

On-the job training is defined as skills, knowledge and competence gained within normal work duties.

These hours may vary depending on previous experience and attainment of the apprentice.

Where a learner enters an Apprenticeship Agreement having previously attained or acquired the appropriate competencies or knowledge, this prior learning needs to be recognised and documented using the relevant Regulatory Qualification credit transfer, Regulatory Qualification exemption or Recognition of Prior Learning procedures (as off-the-job above).

The amount of on-the-job training required to complete the apprenticeship under the Apprenticeship Agreement may then be reduced accordingly, provided the total number of on-the-job hours for this framework can be verified for apprenticeship certification.

Apprentices who commence training under a new Apprenticeship Agreement with a new employer may bring a range of prior experience with them. When an apprentice can claim 25% or more hours towards the on-the-job framework total through prior learning acquired from previous full-time education, employment or other vocational programmes, then the apprentice's learning programme should include 'customisation'.

Training providers are encouraged to identify additional on-the-job training programmes that customise the learning to the new workplace. Customisation programmes may include :

- selecting appropriate additional Unit(s) from Regulatory Qualification qualifications, or relevant units recognised as Quality Assured Lifelong Learning [QALL] through a CQFW recognised body
- following Essential Skills at a level higher than that specified in the framework
- including one or more Wider Key Skills or other competency-based qualifications/units relevant to the workplace.

For apprentices who have already achieved the relevant qualifications, they must have been certificated within 5 years from the date of application for the Foundation

Apprenticeship/Apprenticeship Certificate or have been continuously employed in the industry for three years.

Business Management job roles require a thorough level of technical competence and knowledge, which will be undertaken through work-based training, practice and experience.

On-the-job learning must be formally recorded, either in a diary, workbook, portfolio, or be verified by attendance records. This evidence needs to be checked and signed by the learner and assessor.

On-the-job training needs to:

- be planned, reviewed and evaluated jointly between the apprentice and: a tutor, or teacher; their workplace supervisor or manager; or their coach or mentor
- allow access as and when required by the apprentice either to a tutor, teacher, supervisor, manager, mentor or coach
- be delivered through one or more of the following methods: individual and group teaching; e-learning; distance learning; coaching; mentoring; observation, feedback and assessment; collaborative/networked learning with peers, guided study, and induction
- enable the apprentice to demonstrate practical job-related skills and to practice and apply these in the context of the job
- be the type of learning delivered in the workplace
- be delivered whilst working under an apprenticeship agreement, or during a qualifying period prior to working under an apprenticeship agreement ending on the date of application for an apprenticeship certificate.

Evidence of on-the-job training hours

The Apprenticeship Certificate Claim Form requires apprentices to acknowledge that they have received at least the minimum required levels of on the job and off the job training, as set out in the apprenticeship framework document. At this time no other evidence is required to be uploaded to ACW.
